Tamarac Together

These are unprecedented times. The Coronavirus and its ripple effects have impacted almost every aspect of every day. From the indiscriminate loss of life and widespread fear to the devastating effects on businesses and their employees, the toll has reached far and wide. There are some things that your City simply can't impact, but there are many things we can - and we have.

While this pandemic is unlike any we've ever seen, we are experienced in emergency response. Much like the plan in place for hurricanes, Tamarac geared up our emergency plan for operations during this crisis. The goal was clear: to keep our residents and employees as safe as possible, while continuing to provide much needed City services.

We moved forward in phases, taking carefully measured actions based on what was best for the community. We ensured that Tamarac's first responders had the personal protection equipment they needed. And we closed facilities to the public to limit the spread of the virus, while keeping operations running through a mix of employees working both onsite and remotely.

Once that was in motion, we found ways to help with immediate needs. We put a moratorium in place on water service disconnects, to allow residents and businesses an opportunity to delay payments for a few months. The City deployed grant money to allow us to feed an additional 50 seniors. We worked with Feeding South Florida and several religious organizations to help those in the general population with food emergencies. And we opened a program to assist qualified residents with money to pay up to three months of mortgage, rent or utility bills.

While parks and recreation facilities remained closed, staff developed a wide array of online classes to help you stay fit both physically and mentally. You'll find details elsewhere in Tam-A-Gram. Also in this issue is a detachable Resource Guide, offering a comprehensive list of agencies and contact information should you need support during this time. You can also find the information on the City's website at www.Tamarac.org/CoronavirusResources.

It's been tough and, realistically, it will probably get worse before it gets better. Rest assured that your City is on top of it. We'll make the difficult decisions that will move us forward, with as little negative impact as possible. In time, life will get back to normal; although it will probably be a new normal.

For now, stay safe and stay home, and we'll get through this Tamarac, together.

A CELEBRATION OF UNITY

Not so long ago, before social distancing became a thing, we came together to celebrate our multicultural community at the One Tamarac festival. An estimated 2,500 people joined us for performances that we won't soon forget by the legendary Sugar Hill Gang, The Latin Ensemble and a number of local groups representing a variety of cultures.

Know that when the time is right, we will come together once again to celebrate our unity as a community.

Hurricane Preparation

With the 2020 hurricane season just around the corner and the ongoing effects of the pandemic, it's more important than ever to prepare now.

The City of Tamarac is not in a mandatory evacuation zone. However, you should consider your individual circumstances when determining whether to stay home or evacuate. If you do leave your home, it's better to stay with family or friends than to go to a shelter, if possible. Reviewing your insurance policies, having an up-to-date list of needed medications, establishing who will install your hurricane shutters and preparing your house should all be part of your plan. Don't forget about your pets, whether that means getting supplies or finding safe pet lodging if you evacuate.

When a storm threatens South Florida, make sure to fill your vehicles with gas, have fuel for your generator and cash in your possession. Remember, gas pumps and ATMs don't work during a power outage.

Stay Connected:

The best way for the City to communicate with its residents during a hurricane is through CodeRED emergency notifications. It's FREE and easy. Visit www.Tamarac.org and click the red Emergency Services button on the home page, or text TamaracCodeRED to 99411. You can opt to receive phone calls, email and/or text notifications when we have critical information to share.

The 2020 Census – It's Your Turn to Respond

Health care workers and first responders have been our heroes on the front line of the COVID-19 pandemic. Now, it's your turn to help them help our community by responding to the 2020 Census.

Census data is used to plan funding for hospitals, clinics and emergency services. Your participation helps ensure our community gets its fair share.

An undercount in the 2010 Census cost Broward County almost $211 million over the past decade. That means money that could've served our community went somewhere else. Let's not let that happen again!

If you haven't completed your questionnaire, there's still time to do so and no reason to delay. Responding is fast and easy and can be done online, by phone or mail.

Remember, it doesn't matter if you're a citizen or not, or if you own or rent your home. Everyone counts in Tamarac, and it's important that you and everyone in your household, including young children, are counted.

For more information, visit www.2020Census.gov.

Proactive Policing

BSO Tamarac introduced a new policing structure to strengthen bonds with the community and deepen its understanding of the needs of those it serves.

Here's how it works. BSO has nine geographic patrol zones in Tamarac and a team is assigned to each one. These teams consist of four deputies and a sergeant, detective and crime analyst. Instead of rotating in different areas of the City, team members work almost exclusively in their zone. This focus allows them to better connect with and understand residents and businesses.

"I believe this community-oriented approach will improve response times and enhance our ability to identify and respond to crime trends," said BSO Tamarac District Captain Jeff Cirminiello. "Zone policing also leads to more cooperation and trust between deputies and members of the community as they get to know each other."

As an example, when the Central Parc community experienced an increase in car break-ins, BSO deputies assigned to the area worked with information provided by residents to investigate, identify and ultimately apprehend the group of youths committing these crimes.

Zone team deputies have already met with numerous residents and business owners who have shared their issues and concerns. This helps BSO Tamarac address their issues or, when more appropriate, guide them to the proper resource. If you have problems that you would like to address with your BSO Tamarac zone deputies, call (954) 720-2225 to connect with them.

Proclamations

When the Commission celebrated Black History Month in February, they recognized the following individuals for their contributions.

The late W. GEORGE ALLEN was the first Black student to earn a law degree from the University of Florida. As a prominent civil rights attorney, he helped to integrate public schools, beach access and parks in Broward County.

DR. SONJA KERR opened her Tamarac-based, no-appointment-needed Family Medical Inc. in 2003. She was inspired by her mother, a New York City emergency room nurse, to pursue a career in medicine.

KIMM R. CAMPBELL, LCSW is the Assistant to the Broward County Administrator and President and CEO of Transitions Consulting Group, Inc. She also established the Broward County Office of Equity and Community Investment and spearheaded a comprehensive Dismantling Racism Initiative.

JULIET M. ROULHAC, ESQ. is the Florida Power & Light (FPL) Director for Corporate Affairs for Broward and West Florida. She serves as the Chair of the Greater Fort Lauderdale Alliance and mentors Nova High School students as a part of the Women of Tomorrow program.

ANDREA C. KNOWLES, MPA was the first African American to serve as the Executive Director of the Broward Legislative Delegation and Broward Days, Inc. Andrea serves as the Vice Chair of Victory Living Programs, which helps people with developmental challenges learn to live independently, and is a member of the United Way of Broward County Public Policy Advisory Committee.

GERALD A. STREETE is the Treasurer of the Kings Point African American Cultural and Social Club and the membership chair of the Kings Point Democratic Club. He writes the monthly Kings Point newsletter, "The Kings Point Democratic Voice."

University Hospital and Medical Center

The last six months have brought many changes for Tamarac-based University Hospital and Medical Center (UHMC). In addition to responding to the COVID-19 pandemic, they've welcomed a new chief executive officer and purchased advanced robotic surgical technology.

CEO Ben Harris came onboard late last year. In addition to nearly 20 years in the healthcare industry, his background includes a unique personal experience with an infectious disease. Ben was hospitalized for six months while battling West Nile virus in 2017. His gratitude for the quality care he received fuels his desire to provide excellent care to every patient, every time.

That's what UHMC has strived to do during the pandemic, caring for more than 40 COVID-19 patients.

As part of HCA Healthcare, one of the largest healthcare systems in the nation, UHMC was able to provide pandemic pay and all the personal protective equipment needed for staff.

Before the pandemic, the hospital had the opportunity to make two significant investments in technology. It acquired its second da Vinci surgical system, used in a wide variety of surgeries, and a MAKO minimally invasive robotic joint replacement system. Surgeons use these systems to perform less invasive procedures with greater precision. Patient benefits can include less pain and a faster recovery.

The Best Just Got Better

Tamarac Fire Rescue (TFR) is good – and they're nationally recognized for it. But for them, good wasn't good enough. Despite holding the prestigious ISO Class 1 rating for fire protection services since 2015, a rating that less than 1% of the fire departments in the country have, TFR staff knew they could do better.

The goal: the most distinguished accreditation for their industry, established by the Commission on Fire Accreditation International (CFAI).

This recognizes fire departments for utilizing best practices and self-accountability when providing residents and businesses with industry-leading fire protection and medical services. It's measured by honing in on 253 indicators in 10 performance categories: governance and administration, assessment and planning, goals and objectives, financial resources, programs, physical resources, human resources, training and competency, essential resources, and external systems relationships.

The accreditation process is long and arduous and includes conducting a community survey, extensive self-assessments and reporting, thorough document reviews and onsite assessments by CFAI.

"It took five years, but the entire team came together to earn this accreditation," said Division Chief Jonathan Frasher. "It verifies and validates everything we do for the community."

Only 84 of more than 30,000 fire departments in the United States and Canada have the CFAI accreditation and an ISO Class 1 rating.
